

The value of unused national assets should be considered as part of NPF.

Greenways on disused train lines offer huge potential by bring visitors, business, vibrancy and opportunity to communities. A Greenway will provide a safe route for cycling and walking and in the longer term will lead to improved health and well-being for Irish citizens.

As an example the disused train line from Athenry to Sligo has the potential to catalyse all development opportunities in existing communities, some of which are disadvantaged, by providing a lifeline through an underdeveloped part of the country.
